

Fifty Rules of Treatment Webinar Description

There are fundamental rules and principles that control treatment processes. Often, operators are unaware of these principles until it is too late. This course not only covers these rules, but it will also show how universal they are in different treatment processes.

Treatment operates by a set of rules. This course provides an overview of these rules and how they impact different types of treatment. We will not only show why we need to follow the rules, but also what happens if we don't. Whatever type of treatment system you have, whatever treatment job you do, whatever treatment challenges you face, knowing the rules can make your effluent better and your job more rewarding and fulfilling.
